Sandberg USB 2.0 Switcher

The Sandberg USB 2.0 Switcher is a switchbox that enables you to use the same USB device on two computers. The USB device connects to the switchbox, which then connects to each computer. You can then press a simple key combination or a button on the box to select which of the two computers uses the USB device. All types of USB accessories can be connected, including webcams, scanners, hubs and printers. This avoids you having to buy devices of the same type for each computer, which would also take up more space on your desktop. So you save both money and space. The Sandberg USB 2.0 Switcher does not require any software to be installed. You can use it as soon as you connect it.
